PREFACE

THIS book is, in part, a reprint of The Wild Swans at Coole, printed a year ago on my sister's hand-press at Dundrum, Co. Dublin. I have not, however, reprinted a play which may be a part of a book of new plays suggested by the dance plays of Japan, and I have added a number of new poems. Michael Robartes and John Aherne, whose names occur in one or other of these, are characters in some stories I wrote years ago, who have once again become a part of the phantasmagoria through which I can alone express my convictions about the world. I have the fancy that I read the name John Aherne among those of men prosecuted for making a disturbance at the first production of "The Play Boy" which may account for his animosity to myself.

NOTE	115

THE WILD SWANS AT COOLE

THE trees are in their autumn beauty,
The woodland paths are dry,
Under the October twilight the water Mirrors a still sky ; Upon the brimming water among the stones
Are nine and fifty swans.

The nineteenth Autumn has come upon me
Since I first made my count ;
I saw, before I had well finished,
All suddenly mount And scatter wheeling in great broken rings
Upon their clamorous wings.

2 THE WILD SWANS AT COOLE

I have looked upon those brilliant creatures,

And now my heart is sore.

All's changed since I, hearing at twilight,

The first time on this shore,

The bell-beat of their wings above my head,

Trod with a lighter tread.

Unwearied still, lover by lover,

They paddle in the cold,

Companionable streams or climb the air ;

Their hearts have not grown old ;

Passion or conquest, wander where they will,

Attend upon them still.

But now they drift on the still water

Mysterious, beautiful ;

THE WILD SWANS AT COOLE 3

Among what rushes will they build,
By what lake's edge or pool Delight men's eyes when I awake some day
To find they have flown away ?

IN MEMORY OF MAJOR ROBERT GREGORY

Now that we're almost settled in our house I'll name the friends that cannot sup with us Beside a fire of turf in th' ancient tower,
And having talked to some late hour Climb up the narrow winding stair to bed :
Discoverers of forgotten truth
Or mere companions of my youth, All, all are in my thoughts to-night being dead.

2

Always we'd have the new friend meet the old
And we are hurt if either friend seem cold,
And there is salt to lengthen out the smart
In the affections of our heart, And quarrels are blown up upon that
head ;
But not a friend that I would bring This night can set us quarrelling, For all that come into my mind are dead.

Lionel Johnson comes the first to mind, That loved his learning better than mankind, Though courteous to the worst ; much falling he Brooded upon sanctity

6 MAJOR ROBERT GREGORY

Till all his Greek and Latin learning seemed
A long blast upon the horn that brought
A little nearer to his thought A measureless consummation that he dreamed.

And that enquiring man John Synge comes next That dying chose the living world for text
And never could have rested in the tomb
But that, long travelling, he had come Towards nightfall upon certain set apart
In a most desolate stony place, Towards nightfall upon a race Passionate and simple like his heart.

And then I think of old George Pollexfen,
In muscular youth well known to Mayo men
For horsemanship at meets or at racecourses,
That could have shown how purebred horses
And solid men, for all their passion, live
But as the outrageous stars incline
By opposition, square and trine ; Having grown sluggish and contemplative.

6

They were my close companions many a year,
A portion of my mind and life, as it were,
And now their breathless faces seem to look

f some old picture-book ; accustomed to their lack of reath, at that my dear friend's dear son, idney and our perfect man, share in that courtesy of eath.

7 ll things the delighted eye now ees loved by him ; the old stormroken trees cast their shadows upon road nd bridge ;

ower set on the stream's edge ; ord where drinking cattle make stir ly, and startled by that sound water-hen must change her round ;
ight have been your heartiest elecomer.

8

When with the Galway foxhounds he would ride From Castle Taylor to the Roxborough side Or Esserkelly plain, few kept his pace ;
At Mooneen he had leaped a place So perilous that half the astonished meet Had shut their eyes, and where was it
He rode a race without a bit ?
And yet his mind outran the horses' feet.

We dreamed that a great painter had been born To cold Clare rock and Galway rock and thorn,

To that stern colour and that delicate line

That are our secret discipline Wherein the gazing heart doubles her might.

Soldier, scholar, horseman, he,
And yet he had the intensity To have published all to be a world's delight.

10

What other could so well have counselled us

In all lovely intricacies of a house As he that practised or that understood

All work in metal or in wood,
In moulded plaster or in carven stone ?
Soldier, scholar, horseman, he,
And all he did done perfectly As though he had but that one trade alone.

11

Some burn damp fagots, others may consume

The entire combustible world in one small room

As though dried straw, and if we turn about

The bare chimney is gone black out Because the work had finished in that flare.

Soldier, scholar, horseman, he,
As 'twere all life's epitome.

What made us dream that he could comb grey hair ?

I had thought, seeing how bitter is that wind

That shakes the shutter, to have brought to mind

All those that manhood tried, or childhood loved Or boyish intellect approved, With some appropriate commentary on each ;
Until imagination brought A fitter welcome ; but a thought Of that late death took all my heart for speech.

AN IRISH AIRMAN FORESEES HIS DEATH

I know that I shall meet my fate Somewhere among the clouds above ;
Those that I fight I do not hate, Those that I guard I do not love ;
My country is Kiltartan Cross,
My countrymen Kiltartan's poor,
No likely end could bring them loss Or leave them happier than before.
Nor law, nor duty bade me fight, Nor public men, nor cheering crowds,
A lonely impulse of delight Drove to this tumult in the clouds ;
I balanced all, brought all to mind,
The years to come seemed waste of breath,
A waste of breath the years behind In balance with this life, this death.

MEN IMPROVE WITH THE YEARS

I AM worn out with dreams ;
A weather-worn, marble triton
Among the streams ;
And all day long I look Upon this lady's beauty
As though I had found in book
Pleased to have filled the eyes
Or the discerning ears, Delighted to be but wise,
For men improve with the years ;
And yet and yet
Is this my dream, or the truth ?
O would that we had met
When I had my burning youth ;
But I grow old among dreams,

THE COLLAR-BONE OF A HARE

WOULD I could cast a sail on the water Where many a king has gone
And many a king's daughter, And alight at the comely trees and the lawn,
The playing upon pipes and the dancing,
And learn that the best thing is To change my loves while dancing And pay but a kiss for a kiss.

I would find by the edge of that water
Worn thin by the lapping of water, And pierce it through with a gimlet and stare

16 COLLAR-BONE OF A HARE

At the old bitter world where they marry in churches,
And laugh over the untroubled water
At all who marry in churches, Through the white thin bone of a hare.

UNDER THE ROUND TOWER

‘ALTHOUGH I’d lie lapped up in linen A deal I’d sweat and little earn
If I should live as live the neighbours,’ Cried the beggar, Billy Byrne ; ‘Stretch bones till the daylight come On great-grandfather’s battered tomb.’

Upon a grey old battered tombstone In Glendalough beside the stream, Where the O’Byrnes and Byrnes are buried,
He stretched his bones and fell in a dream
Of sun and moon that a good hour Bellowed and pranced in the round tower ;

Of golden king and silver lady, Bellowing up and bellowing round, Till toes mastered a sweet measure, Mouth mastered a sweet sound, Prancing round and prancing up Until they pranced upon the top.

That golden king and that wild lady Sang till stars began to fade, Hands gripped in hands, toes close together, Hair spread on the wind they made ;
That lady and that golden king Could like a brace of blackbirds sing.

That rambling jailbird Billy said ; ‘ Before nightfall I’ll pick a pocket
And snug it in a feather-bed,
I cannot find the peace of home

SOLOMON TO SHEBA

SANG Solomon to Sheba,
And kissed her dusky face, ‘ All day long from mid-day
We have talked in the one place,
All day long from shadowless noon
We have gone round and round
In the narrow theme of love Like an old horse in a pound.’

To Solomon sang Sheba, Planted on his knees, ‘ If you had broached a matter
That might the learned please,
You had before the sun had thrown Our shadows on the ground Discovered that my thoughts, not it, Are but a narrow pound.’

Sang Solomon to Sheba,
And kissed her Arab eyes, ‘There’s not a man or woman Born under the skies Dare match in learning with us two,
And all day long we have found There’s not a thing but love can make The world a narrow pound.’

THE LIVING BEAUTY

I'LL say and maybe dream I have drawn content—Seeing that time has frozen up the blood,
The wick of youth being burned and the oil spent—From beauty that is cast out of a mould
In bronze, or that in dazzling marble appears, Appears, and when we have gone is gone again,
Being more indifferent to our solitude Than 'twere an apparition. O heart, we are old,
The living beauty is for younger men,
We cannot pay its tribute of wild tears.

A SONG

I THOUGHT no more was needed Youth to prolong Than dumb-bell and foil
To keep the body young.
Oh, who could have foretold
That the heart grows old ?

Though I have many words,
What woman's satisfied,
I am no longer faint Because at her side ?
Oh, who could have foretold
That the heart grows old ?

I have not lost desire But the heart that I had,
I thought 'twould burn my body Laid on the death-bed.
But who could have foretold

TO A YOUNG BEAUTY

DEAR fellow-artist, why so free
With every sort of company, With every Jack and Jill ?
Choose your companions from the best ;
Who draws a bucket with the rest Soon topples down the hill.

You may, that mirror for a school,
Be passionate, not bountiful
As common beauties may,
Who were not born to keep in trim With old Ezekiel's cherubim
But those of Beaujolet.

I know what wages beauty gives,
How hard a life her servant lives,
Yet praise the winters gone ;
There is not a fool can call me friend,
And I may dine at journey's end With Landor and with Donne.

TO A YOUNG GIRL

My dear, my dear, I know
More than another
What makes your heart beat so ;
Not even your own mother Can know it as I know,
Who broke my heart for her
When the wild thought,
That she denies
And has forgot,
Set all her blood astir
And glittered in her eyes.

THE SCHOLARS

BALD heads forgetful of their sins, Old, learned, respectable bald heads Edit and annotate the lines That young men, tossing on their beds, Rhymed out in love's despair
To flatter beauty's ignorant ear.

They'll cough in the ink to the world's end ;
Wear out the carpet with their shoes Earning respect ; have no strange friend ;
If they have sinned nobody knows.
Lord, what would they say Should their Catullus walk that way ?

TOM O'ROUGHLEY

‘THOUGH logic choppers rule the town,
And every man and maid and boy Has marked a distant object down, An aimless joy is a pure joy,’
Or so did Tom O’Roughley say That saw the surges running by,
‘And wisdom is a butterfly
And not a gloomy bird of prey.

‘If little planned is little sinned
But little need the grave distress.
What’s dying but a second wind ?
How but in zig-zag wantonness Could trumpeter Michael be so brave ?’
Or something of that sort he said,
‘And if my dearest friend were dead I’d dance a measure on his grave.’

SHEPHERD

THAT cry's from the first cuckoo of the year.

I wished before it ceased.

GOATHERD

Nor bird nor beast Could make me wish for anything this day,

Being old, but that the old alone might die,

And that would be against God's Providence.

Let the young wish. But what has brought you here ?

Never until this moment have we met

Where my goats browse on the scarce grass or leap From stone to stone.

SHEPHERD

I am looking for strayed sheep ; Something has troubled me and in my trouble
I let them stray. I thought of rhyme
alone,
For rhyme can beat a measure out of trouble
And make the daylight sweet once more ; but when I had driven every rhyme into its place
The sheep had gone from theirs.

I know right well What turned so good a shepherd from his charge.

SHEPHERD

He that was best in every country sport
And every country craft, and of us all Most courteous to slow age and hasty youth,
Is dead.

The boy that brings my griddle cake Brought the bare news.

SHEPHERD

He had thrown the crook away And died in the great war beyond the sea.

GOATHERD

He had often played his pipes among my hills,

And when he played it was their loneliness,
The exultation of their stone, that cried Under his fingers.

I had it from his mother, And his own flock was browsing at the door.

GOATHERD

How does she bear her grief ? There is not a shepherd But grows more gentle when he speaks her name, Remembering kindness done, and how can I,
That found when I had neither goat nor grazing
New welcome and old wisdom at her fire Till winter blasts were gone, but speak of her Even before his children and his wife.

SHEPHERD

She goes about her house erect and calm Between the pantry and the linen chest,
Or else at meadow or at grazing overlooks Her labouring men, as though her darling lived But for her grandson now; there is no change
But such as I have seen upon her face Watching our shepherd sports at harvest-time
When her son's turn was over.

GOATHERD

Sing your song,
I too have rhymed my reveries, but youth
Is hot to show whatever it has found,

And till that's done can neither work nor wait.
Old goatherds and old goats, if in all else Youth can excel them in accomplishment,
Are learned in waiting.

SHEPHERD

You cannot but have seen That he alone had gathered up no gear, Set carpenters to work on no wide table,
On no long bench nor lofty milking shed
As others will, when first they take possession, But left the house as in his father's time
As though he knew himself, as it were, a cuckoo, No settled man. And now that he is gone

There's nothing of him left but half a score Of sorrowful, austere, sweet, lofty pipe tunes.

GOATHERD

You have put the thought in rhyme.

SHEPHERD

I worked all day,
And when 'twas done so little had I done
That maybe 'I am sorry' in plain prose
Had sounded better to your mountain fancy.

[He sings.]

‘Like the speckled bird that steers Thousands of leagues oversea, And runs for a while or a while half-flies Upon his yellow legs through our meadows,

34 THE SAD SHEPHERD

He stayed for a while ; and we Had scarcely accustom'd our ears
To his speech at the break of day,
Had scarcely accustom'd our eyes To his shape in the lengthening shadows, Where the sheep are thrown in the pool,
When he vanished from ears and eyes.
I had wished a dear thing on that
I heard him first, but man is a fool.'

You sing as always of the natural life,
And I that made like music in my youth Hearing it now have sighed for that young man And certain lost companions of my own.

SHEPHERD

They say that on your barren mountain ridge You have measured out the road that the soul treads
When it has vanished from our natural eyes ;
That you have talked with apparitions.

Indeed

My daily thoughts since the first stupor of youth Have found the path my goats' feet cannot find.

SHEPHERD

Sing, for it may be that your thoughts have plucked Some medicable herb to make our grief Less bitter.

GOATHERD

They have brought me from that ridge

Seed pods and flowers that are not all wild poppy.

‘ He grows younger every second That were all his birthdays reckoned Much too solemn seemed ;
Because of what he had dreamed,
Or the ambitions that he served,
Much too solemn and reserved.
Jaunting, journeying
To his own dayspring,
He unpacks the loaded pern
Of all ’twas pain or joy to learn,
Of all that he had made.
The outrageous war shall fade ;
At some old winding whitethorn root He’ll practise on the shepherd’s flute, Or on the close-cropped grass Court his shepherd lass,

Or run where lads reform our day-time Till that is their long shouting play-time ; Knowledge he shall unwind Through victories of the mind, Till, clambering at the cradle side,
He dreams himself his mother's pride,
All knowledge lost in trance Of sweeter ignorance.'

When I have shut these ewes and this old ram Into the fold, we'll to the woods and there Cut out our rhymes on strips of new-torn bark But put no name and leave them at her door.
To know the mountain and the valley grieve

May be a quiet thought to wife and mother,
And children when they spring up shoulder high.

LINES WRITTEN IN DEJECTION

WHEN have I last looked on The round green eyes and the long wavering bodies Of the dark leopards of the moon ?
All the wild witches those most noble ladies,
For all their broom-sticks and their tears,
Their angry tears, are gone.
The holy centaurs of the hills are vanished ;
I have nothing but the embittered sun; Banished heroic mother moon and vanished,
And now that I have come to fifty years
I must endure the timid sun.

THE DAWN

I WOULD be ignorant as the dawn
That has looked down On that old queen measuring a town
With the pin of a brooch, Or on the withered men that saw From their pedantic Babylon
The careless planets in their courses, The stars fade out where the moon comes,
And took their tablets and did sums ;
I would be ignorant as the dawn
That merely stood, rocking the glittering coach Above the cloudy shoulders of the horses ;
I would be—for no knowledge is worth a straw—
Ignorant and wanton as the dawn.

ON WOMAN

MAY God be praised for woman That gives up all her mind,
A man may find in no man
A friendship of her kind That covers all he has brought As with her flesh and bone, Nor quarrels with a thought Because it is not her own.

Though pedantry denies It's plain the Bible means That Solomon grew wise While talking with his queens Yet never could, although They say he counted grass, Count all the praises due

When Sheba was his lass, When she the iron wrought, or When from the smithy fire
It shuddered in the water :
Harshness of their desire That made them stretch and yawn, Pleasure that comes with sleep, Shudder that made them one.
What else He give or keep God grant me—no not here,
For I am not so bold
To hope a thing so dear
Now I am growing old,
But when if the tale's true
The Pestle of the moon
That pounds up all anew Brings me to birth again—
To find what once I had And know what once I have known, Until I am driven mad, Sleep driven from my bed,
By tenderness and care,
Pity, an aching head,

Gnashing of teeth, despair ;
And all because of some one Perverse creature of chance, And live like Solomon That Sheba led a dance.

THE FISHERMAN

ALTHOUGH I can see him still The freckled man who goes To a grey place on a hill In grey Connemara clothes At dawn to cast his flies, It's long since I began To call up to the eyes
This wise and simple man.
All day I'd looked in the face What I had hoped 'twould be To write for my own race
And the reality ;
The living men that I hate,
The dead man that I loved,
The craven man in his seat,
The insolent unreproved
And no knave brought to book
Who has won a drunken cheer,

The witty man and his joke Aimed at the commonest ear, The clever man who cries
The catch-cries of the clown,
The beating down of the wise
And great Art beaten down.

Maybe a twelvemonth since Suddenly I began,
In scorn of this audience Imagining a man,
And his sun-freckled face,
And grey Connemara cloth, Climbing up to a place Where stone is dark under froth,
And the down turn of his wrist
When the flies drop in the stream;
A man who does not exist,
A man who is but a dream;
And cried, 'Before I am old I shall have written him one Poem maybe as cold
And passionate as the dawn.'

THE HAWK

‘CALL down the hawk from the air ;
Let him be hooded or caged Till the yellow eye has grown mild,
For larder and spit are bare,
The old cook enraged,
The scullion gone wild.’

‘ I will not be clapped in a hood, Nor a cage, nor alight upon wrist,
Now I have learnt to be proud Hovering over the wood In the broken mist
Or tumbling cloud.’

‘What tumbling cloud did you cleave, Yellow-eyed hawk of the mind,
Last evening ? that I, who had sat Dumbfounded before a knave, Should give to my friend
A pretence of wit.’

MEMORY

ONE had a lovely face,
And two or three had charm,
But charm and face were in vain Because the mountain grass Cannot but keep the form
Where the mountain hare has lain.

HER PRAISE

SHE is foremost of those that I would hear praised.
I have gone about the house, gone up and down
As a man does who has published a new book
Or a young girl dressed out in her new gown,
And though I have turned the talk by hook or crook Until her praise should be the uppermost theme,
A woman spoke of some new tale she had read,
A man confusedly in a half dream As though some other name ran in his head.

She is foremost of those that I would
hear praised.

I will talk no more of books or the long war

But walk by the dry thorn until I have found

Some beggar sheltering from the wind, and there

Manage the talk until her name come round.

If there be rags enough he will know
her name

And be well pleased remembering it, for in the old days,

Though she had young men's praise and old men's blame,

Among the poor both old and young gave her praise.

THE PEOPLE

‘WHAT have I earned for all that work,’ I said, ‘For all that I have done at my own charge ?
The daily spite of this unmannerly town,
Where who has served the most is most defamed,
The reputation of his lifetime lost Between the night and morning. I might have lived, And you know well how great the longing has been,
Where every day my footfall should have lit
In the green shadow of Ferrara wall ;

Or climbed among the images of the past—
The unperturbed and courtly images—Evening and morning, the steep street of Urbino
To where the duchess and her people talked
The stately midnight through until they stood In their great window looking at the dawn ;
I might have had no friend that could not mix Courtesy and passion into one like those That saw the wicks grow yellow in the dawn ;
I might have used the one substantial right
My trade allows : chosen my company,
And chosen what scenery had pleased me best.'

Thereon my phoenix answered in reproof,
'The drunkards, pilferers of public funds,
All the dishonest crowd I had driven away.
When my luck changed and they dared meet my face, Crawled from obscurity, and set upon me Those I had served and some that I had fed ;
Yet never have I, now nor any time, Complained of the people.'

All I could reply Was : ' You, that have not lived in thought but deed,
Can have the purity of a natural force,
But I, whose virtues are the definitions Of the analytic mind, can neither close The eye of the mind nor keep my tongue from speech.'

And yet, because my heart leaped at her words,
I was abashed, and now they come to mind After nine years, I sink my head abashed.

HIS PHOENIX

THERE is a queen in China, or maybe it's in Spain,
And birthdays and holidays such praises can be heard Of her unblemished lineaments, a whiteness with no stain, That she might be that sprightly girl who was trodden by a bird ;
And there's a score of duchesses, surpassing womankind, Or who have found a painter to make them so for pay And smooth out stain and blemish with the elegance of his mind :
I knew a phoenix in my youth so let them have their day.

The young men every night applaud their Gaby's laughing eye, And Ruth St. Denis had more charm although she had poor luck, From nineteen hundred nine or ten,
Pavlova's had the cry,
And there's a player in the States who gathers up her cloak And flings herself out of the room when Juliet would be bride With all a woman's passion, a child's imperious way,
And there are—but no matter if there are scores beside :
I knew a phoenix in my youth so let
them have their day.

There's Margaret and Marjorie and Dorothy and Nan, A Daphne and a Mary who live in privacy ;
One's had her fill of lovers, another's had but one,

Another boasts, 'I pick and choose and have but two or three.'
If head and limb have beauty and the instep's high and light They can spread out what sail they please for all I have to say, Be but the breakers of men's hearts or engines of delight :
I knew a phoenix in my youth so let
them have their day.

There'll be that crowd to make men wild through all the centuries, And maybe there'll be some young belle walk out to make men wild Who is my beauty's equal, though that my heart denies,
But not the exact likeness, the simplicity of a child, And that proud look as though she had gazed into the burning sun, And all the shapely body no tittle gone astray

I mourn for that most lonely thing;
and yet God's will be done,
I knew a phoenix in my youth so let
them have their day.

A THOUGHT FROM PROPERTIUS

SHE might, so noble from head
To great shapely knees
The long flowing line,
Have walked to the altar Through the holy images
At Pallas Athene's side, Or been fit spoil for a centaur Drunk with the unmixed wine.

BROKEN DREAMS

THERE is grey in your hair.
Young men no longer suddenly catch their breath
When you are passing ;
But maybe some old gaffer mutters a blessing
Because it was your prayer Recovered him upon the bed of death.
For your sole sake—that all heart's ache have known,
And given to others all heart's ache, From meagre girlhood's putting on Burdensome beauty—for your sole sake Heaven has put away the stroke of her doom,

So great her portion in that peace you make
By merely walking in a room.

Your beauty can but leave among us Vague memories, nothing but memories.

A young man when the old men are done talking Will say to an old man, 'Tell me of that lady
The poet stubborn with his passion sang us When age might well have chilled his blood.'

Vague memories, nothing but memories,
But in the grave all, all, shall be renewed.
The certainty that I shall see that lady Leaning or standing or walking

In the first loveliness of womanhood, And with the fervour of my youthful eyes,
Has set me muttering like a fool.

You are more beautiful than any one
And yet your body had a flaw :
Your small hands were not beautiful,
And I am afraid that you will run And paddle to the wrist
In that mysterious, always brimming lake Where those that have obeyed the holy law Paddle and are perfect ; leave unchanged
The hands that I have kissed For old sakes' sake.

The last stroke of midnight dies.
All day in the one chair

From dream to dream and rhyme to rhyme I have ranged In rambling talk with an image of air :
Vague memories, nothing but memories.

A DEEP-SWORN VOW

OTHERS because you did not keep That deep-sworn vow have been friends of mine ;
Yet always when I look death in the face,
When I clamber to the heights of sleep,
Or when I grow excited with wine, Suddenly I meet your face.

PRESENCES

THIS night has been so strange that it seemed
As if the hair stood up on my head.
From going-down of the sun I have dreamed
That women laughing, or timid or wild,
In rustle of lace or silken stuff, Climbed up my creaking stair. They had read
All I had rhymed of that monstrous thing
Returned and yet unrequited love.
They stood in the door and stood between
My great wood lecturn and the fire

Till I could hear their hearts beating :
One is a harlot, and one a child That never looked upon man with desire,
And one it may be a queen.

THE BALLOON OF THE MIND

HANDS do what you're bid ;
Bring the balloon of the mind That bellies and drags in the wind Into its narrow shed.

TO A SQUIRREL AT KYLE-NA-GNO

COME play with me ;
Why should you run Through the shaking tree
As though I'd a gun
To strike you dead ?
When all I would do
Is to scratch your head And let you go.

ON BEING ASKED FOR A WAR POEM

I THINK it better that in times like these A poet keep his mouth shut, for in truth
We have no gift to set a statesman
right ;
He has had enough of meddling who can please
A young girl in the indolence of her youth,
Or an old man upon a winter's night.

IN MEMORY OF ALFRED POLLEXFEN

FIVE-AND-TWENTY years have gone Since old William Pollexfen Laid his strong bones down in death By his wife Elizabeth
In the grey stone tomb he made.
And after twenty years they laid In that tomb by him and her,
His son George, the astrologer ;
And Masons drove from miles away To scatter the Acacia spray Upon a melancholy man Who had ended where his breath began.
Many a son and daughter lies Far from the customary skies,

The Mall and Eades's grammar school,
In London or in Liverpool ;
But where is laid the sailor John ?
That so many lands had known :
Quiet lands or unquiet seas Where the Indians trade or Japanese.
He never found his rest ashore Moping for one voyage more.
Where have they laid the sailor John ?

And yesterday the youngest son,
A humorous, unambitious man,
Was buried near the astrologer ;
And are we now in the tenth year ?
Since he, who had been contented long,
A nobody in a great throng, Decided he would journey home,
Now that his fiftieth year had come,
And 'Mr. Alfred' be again Upon the lips of common men Who carried in their memory His childhood and his family.

ALFRED POLLEXFEN 71

At all these death-beds women heard A visionary white sea-bird Lamenting that a man should die ;
And with that cry I have raised my cry.

UPON A DYING LADY

HER COURTESY

WITH the old kindness, the old distinguished grace
She lies, her lovely pitcous head amid dull red hair Propped upon pillows, rouge on the pallor of her face.
She would not have us sad because she is lying there,
And when she meets our gaze her eyes are laughter-lit, Her speech a wicked tale that we may vie with her

Matching our broken - hearted wit against her wit, Thinking of saints and of Petronius Arbiter.

II

CERTAIN ARTISTS BRING HER DOLLS AND DRAWINGS

Bring where our Beauty lies A new modelled doll, or drawing, With a friend's or an enemy's Features, or maybe showing Her features when a tress Of dull red hair was flowing Over some silken dress Cut in the Turkish fashion,
Or it may be like a boy's.
We have given the world our passion,
We have naught for death but toys.

SHE TURNS THE DOLLS' FACES TO
THE WALL

Because to-day is some religious festival
They had a priest say Mass, and even the Japanese, Heel up and weight on toe, must face
the wall
—Pedant in passion, learned in old courtesies, Vehement and witty she had seemed—;
the Venetian lady Who had seemed to glide to some intrigue in her red shoes, Her domino, her panniered skirt copied from Longhi ;
The meditative critic ; all are on their toes, Even our Beauty with her Turkish trousers on.

Because the priest must have like every dog his day Or keep us all awake with baying at the moon,
We and our dolls being but the world were best away.

THE END OF DAY

She is playing like a child
And penance is the play, Fantastical and wild Because the end of day Shows her that some one soon Will come from the house, and say—Though play is but half-done—
'Come in and leave the play.'—

HER RACE

She has not grown uncivil As narrow natures would

And called the pleasures evil Happier days thought good ;
She knows herself a woman
No red and white of a face, Or rank, raised from a common Unreckonable race ;
And how should her heart fail her Or sickness break her will With her dead brother's valour For an example still.

VI

HER COURAGE

When her soul flies to the predestined dancing-place (I have no speech but symbol, the pagan speech I made Amid the dreams of youth) let her come face to face, While wondering still to be a shade, with Grania's shade

All but the perils of the woodland flight forgot That made her Dermuid dear, and some old cardinal Pacing with half-closed eyelids in a sunny spot
Who had murmured of Giorgione at his latest breath—Aye and Achilles, Timor, Babar, Bar-haim all Who have lived in joy and laughed into the face of Death.

HER FRIENDS BRING HER A CHRISTMAS TREE

Pardon great enemy, Without an angry thought We've carried in our tree,
And here and there have bought Till all the boughs are gay,
And she may look from the bed

On pretty things that may Please a fantastic head.
Give her a little grace,
What if a laughing eye Have looked into your face-- It is about to die.

EGO DOMINUS TUUS

Hrc

ON the grey sand beside the shallow stream
Under your old wind-beaten tower, where still A lamp burns on beside the open book That Michael Robartes left, you walk in the moon
And though you have passed the best of life still trace Enthralled by the unconquerable delusion Magical shapes.

ILLE

By the help of an image
I call to my own opposite, summon all That I have handled least, least looked upon.

And I would find myself and not an image.

That is our modern hope and by its
We have lit upon the gentle, sensitive mind
And lost the old nonchalance of the hand ;
Whether we have chosen chisel, pen or brush
We are but critics, or but half create Timid, entangled, empty and abashed Lacking the countenance of our friends.

And yet
The chief imagination of Christendom Dante Alighieri so utterly found himself
That he has made that hollow face of his More plain to the mind's eye than any face
But that of Christ.

And did he find himself Or was the hunger that had made it hollow
A hunger for the apple on the bough Most out of reach ? and is that spectral
The man that Lapo and that Guido knew ?
I think he fashioned from his opposite An image that might have been a stony face,

Staring upon a bedouin's horse-hair roof

From doored and windowed cliff, or half upturned

Among the coarse grass and the camel dung.

He set his chisel to the hardest stone, Being mocked by Guido for his lecherous life

Derided and deriding, driven out To climb that stair and eat that bitter bread,

He found the unpersuadable justice, he found

The most exalted lady loved by a man.

Yet surely there are men who have made their art

Out of no tragic war, lovers of life, Impulsive men that look for happiness

And sing when they have found it.

No not sing,
 For those that love the world serve it in action,
 Grow rich, popular and full of influence, And should they paint or write still it is action :
 The struggle of the fly in marmalade.
 The rhetorician would deceive his neighbours,
 The sentimentalist himself ; while art
 Is but a vision of reality.
 What portion in the world can the artist have Who has awakened from the common
 But dissipation and despair ?

 No one denies to Keats love of the world ;
 Remember his deliberate happiness.

His art is happy but who knows his mind ?

I see a schoolboy when I think of him With face and nose pressed to a sweet-shop window,

For certainly he sank into his grave
His senses and his heart unsatisfied, And made—being poor, ailing and ignorant,

Shut out from all the luxury of the world,

The coarse-bred son of a livery stable-keeper—

Luxuriant song.

HIC

Why should you leave the lamp Burning alone beside an open book, And trace these characters upon the sands ?

A style is found by sedentary toil
And by the imitation of great masters.

Because I seek an image not a book.
Those men that in their writings are most wise Own nothing but their blind, stupefied hearts.
I call to the mysterious one who yet Shall walk the wet sands by the edge of the stream
And look most like me, being indeed my double,
And prove of all imaginable things
The most unlike, being my anti-self,
And standing by these characters disclose
All that I seek ; and whisper it as though He were afraid the birds, who cry aloud Their momentary cries before it is dawn,
Would carry it away to blasphemous men.

A PRAYER ON GOING INTO MY HOUSE

GOD grant a blessing on this tower and cottage
And on my heirs, if all remain unspoiled, No table, or chair or stool not simple enough For shepherd lads in Galilee; and grant
That I myself for portions of the year
May handle nothing and set eyes on nothing But what the great and passionate have used Throughout so many varying centuries.

We take it for the norm ; yet should I dream Sinbad the sailor's brought a painted chest,
Or image, from beyond the Loadstone Mountain, That dream is a norm ; and should some limb of the devil Destroy the view by cutting down an ash
That shades the road, or setting up a cottage Planned in a government office, shorten his life,
Manacle his soul upon the Red Sea bottom.

THE PHASES OF THE MOON

*An old man cocked his ear upon a bridge ;
He and his friend, their faces to the South,
Had trod the uneven road. Their boots were soiled,
Their Connemara cloth worn out of shape ;
They had kept a steady pace as though their beds,
Despite a dwindling and late risen moon, Were distant. An old man cocked his ear.*

AHERNE

WHAT made that sound ?

ROBARTES

A rat or water-hen Splashed, or an otter slid into the stream.

We are on the bridge ; that shadow is the tower,
And the light proves that he is reading still.

He has found, after the manner of his kind,

Mere images ; chosen this place to live in

Because, it may be, of the candle light From the far tower where Milton's platonist

Sat late, or Shelley's visionary prince :
The lonely light that Samuel Palmer engraved,

An image of mysterious wisdom won by toil ;

And now he seeks in book or manuscript

What he shall never find.

AHERNE

Why should not you Who know it all ring at his door, and speak Just truth enough to show that his whole life Will scarcely find for him a broken crust
Of all those truths that are your daily bread ;
And when you have spoken take the roads again ?

ROBARTES

He wrote of me in that extravagant style
He had learnt from Pater, and to round his tale
Said I was dead ; and dead I chose to be.

Sing me the changes of the moon once more ;
True song, though speech : 'mine author sung it me.'

Twenty - and - eight the phases of the moon,
The full and the moon's dark and all the crescents, Twenty - and - eight, and yet but six - and - twenty
The cradles that a man must needs be rocked in :
For there's no human life at the full or the dark.
From the first crescent to the half, the
But summons to adventure and the man

Is always happy like a bird or a beast ; But while the moon is rounding towards the full He follows whatever whim's most difficult Among whims not impossible, and though scarred,
As with the cat-o'-nine-tails of the mind,
His body moulded from within his body Grows comelier. Eleven pass, and then Athenae takes Achilles by the hair, Hector is in the dust, Nietzsche is born, Because the heroes' crescent is the twelfth.
And yet, twice born, twice buried, grow he must,
Before the full moon, helpless as a worm.
The thirteenth moon but sets the soul at war

In its own being, and when that war's begun
There is no muscle in the arm ; and after Under the frenzy of the fourteenth moon
The soul begins to tremble into stillness,
To die into the labyrinth of itself !

Sing out the song ; sing to the end, and sing
The strange reward of all that discipline.

All thought becomes an image and the soul Becomes a body : that body and that soul Too perfect at the full to lie in a cradle,

Too lonely for the traffic of the world :
Body and soul cast out and cast away Beyond the visible world.

AHERNE

All dreams of the soul End in a beautiful man's or woman's body.

Have you not always known it ?

AHERNE

The song will have it That those that we have loved got their long fingers From death, and wounds, or on Sinai's top, Or from some bloody whip in their own hands.
They ran from cradle to cradle till at last

Their beauty dropped out of the loneliness
Of body and soul.

The lovers' heart knows that.

AHERNE

It must be that the terror in their eyes Is memory or foreknowledge of the
When all is fed with light and heaven is bare.

ROBARTES

When the moon's full those creatures of the full Are met on the waste hills by country men
Who shudder and hurry by : body and soul Estranged amid the strangeness of themselves,

Caught up in contemplation, the mind's eye Fixed upon images that once were thought,
For separate, perfect, and immovable Images can break the solitude Of lovely, satisfied, indifferent eyes.

*And thereupon with aged, high-pitched voice Aherne laughed, thinking of the man within,
His sleepless candle and laborious pen.*

And after that the crumbling of the moon.
The soul remembering its loneliness Shudders in many cradles ; all is changed,
It would be the world's servant, and as it serves,

Choosing whatever task's most difficult Among tasks not impossible, it takes Upon the body and upon the soul
The coarseness of the drudge.

Before the full It sought itself and afterwards the world.

Because you are forgotten, half out of life,
And never wrote a book your thought is clear.
Reformer, merchant, statesman, learned man,
Dutiful husband, honest wife by turn, Cradle upon cradle, and all in flight and all Deformed because there is no de-formity
But saves us from a dream.

AHERNE

And what of those That the last servile crescent has set free ?

Because all dark, like those that are all light,
They are cast beyond the verge, and in a cloud, Crying to one another like the bats ;
And having no desire they cannot tell What's good or bad, or what it is to triumph
At the perfection of one's own obedience ;
And yet they speak what's blown into the mind ; Deformed beyond deformity, unformed, Insipid as the dough before it is baked,
They change their bodies at a word.

AHERNE

And then ?

ROBARTES

When all the dough has been so kneaded up
That it can take what form cook Nature fancy
The first thin crescent is wheeled round once more.

But the escape ; the song's not finished yet.

Hunchback and saint and fool are the last crescents.
The burning bow that once could shoot an arrow
Out of the up and down, the wagon wheel

Of beauty's cruelty and wisdom's chatter,
Out of that raving tide is drawn betwixt Deformity of body and of mind.

Were not our beds far off I'd ring the bell, Stand under the rough roof-timbers of the hall Beside the castle door, where all is stark
Austerity, a place set out for wisdom That he will never find ; I'd play a part ;
He would never know me after all these years But take me for some drunken country
man ;
I'd stand and mutter there until he caught

‘Hunchback and saint and fool,’ and that they came Under the three last crescents of the moon,
And then I’d stagger out. He’d crack his wits Day after day, yet never find the meaning.

*And then he laughed to think that what seemed hard Should be so simple—a bat rose from the hazels
And circled round him with its squeaky cry,
The light in the tower window was put out.*

THE CAT AND THE MOON

THE cat went here and there
And the moon spun round like a top,
And the nearest kin of the moon
The creeping cat looked up.
Black Minnaloushe stared at the moon, For wander and wail as he would The pure cold light in the sky Troubled his animal blood.
Minnaloushe runs in the grass Lifting his delicate feet.
Do you dance, Minnaloushe, do you dance ?
When two close kindred meet What better than call a dance, Maybe the moon may learn,
Tired of that courtly fashion,

A new dance turn.
Minnaloushe creeps through the grass
From moonlit place to place, The sacred moon overhead Has taken a new phase.
Does Minnaloushe know that his pupils Will pass from change to change,
And that from round to crescent,
From crescent to round they range ?
Minnaloushe creeps through the grass Alone, important and wise,
And lifts to the changing moon
His changing eyes.

THE SAINT AND THE HUNCHBACK

HUNCHBACK

STAND up and lift your hand and bless
A man that finds great bitterness In thinking of his lost renown.
A Roman Caesar is held down Under this hump.

SAINT

God tries each man
According to a different plan.
I shall not cease to bless because I lay about me with the taws
That night and morning I may thrash

SAINT AND HUNCHBACK 105

Greek Alexander from my flesh, Augustus Caesar, and after these That great rogue Alcibiades.

To all that in your flesh have stood
And blessed, I give my gratitude, Honoured by all in their degrees,
But most to Alcibiades.

TWO SONGS OF A FOOL

A SPECKLED cat and a tame hare Eat at my hearthstone And sleep there ;
And both look up to me alone
For learning and defence
As I look up to Providence.

I start out of my sleep to think Some day I may forget Their food and drink ;
Or, the house door left unshut,
The hare may run till it's found The horn's sweet note and the tooth
of the hound.

I bear a burden that might well try Men that do all by rule,

And what can I
That am a wandering witted fool
But pray to God that He ease
My great responsibilities.

I slept on my three-legged stool by the fire,
The speckled cat slept on my knee ;
We never thought to enquire Where the brown hare might be,
And whether the door were shut.
Who knows how she drank the wind Stretched up on two legs from the mat, Before she had settled her mind To drum with her heel and to leap :
Had I but awakened from sleep
And called her name she had heard,
It may be, and had not stirred,
That now, it may be, has found
The horn's sweet note and the tooth
of the hound.

ANOTHER SONG OF A FOOL

THIS great purple butterfly,
In the prison of my hands,
Has a learning in his eye
Not a poor fool understands.

Once he lived a schoolmaster
With a stark, denying look,
A string of scholars went in fear
Of his great birch and his great book.

Like the clangour of a bell,
Sweet and harsh, harsh and sweet,
That is how he learnt so well
To take the roses for his meat.

THE DOUBLE VISION OF MICHAEL ROBARTES

ON the grey rock of Cashel the mind's eye
Has called up the cold spirits that are born
When the old moon is vanished from the sky
And the new still hides her horn.

Under blank eyes and fingers never still
The particular is pounded till it is man,
When had I my own will ?
Oh, not since life began.

Constrained, arraigned, baffled, bent and unbent

By these wire-jointed jaws and limbs of wood,

Themselves obedient,
Knowing not evil and good;

Obedient to some hidden magical breath.

They do not even feel, so abstract are they,

So dead beyond our death,
Triumph that we obey.

On the grey rock of Cashel I suddenly saw

A Sphinx with woman breast and lion paw,

A Buddha, hand at rest, Hand lifted up that blest;

And right between these two a girl at play

That it maybe had danced her life away,
For now being dead it seemed That she of dancing dreamed.

Although I saw it all in the mind's eye
There can be nothing solider till I die ;
I saw by the moon's light
Now at its fifteenth night.

One lashed her tail ; her eyes lit by
the moon
Gazed upon all things known, all things unknown,
In triumph of intellect
With motionless head erect.

That other's moonlit eyeballs never moved,
Being fixed on all things loved, all things unloved, Yet little peace he had
For those that love are sad.

Oh, little did they care who danced between,
And little she by whom her dance was seen
So that she danced. No thought, Body perfection brought,

For what but eye and ear silence the mind
With the minute particulars of mankind ?
Mind moved yet seemed to stop
As 'twere a spinning-top.

In contemplation had those three so wrought Upon a moment, and so stretched it
That they, time overthrown, Were dead yet flesh and bone.

I knew that I had seen, had seen at last

That girl my unremembering nights hold fast

Or else my dreams that fly,
If I should rub an eye,

And yet in flying fling into my meat

A crazy juice that makes the pulses beat

As though I had been undone
By Homer's Paragon

Who never gave the burning town a thought;

To such a pitch of folly I am
brought,

Being caught between the pull Of the dark moon and the full,

The commonness of thought and images

That have the frenzy of our western seas.

Thereon I made my moan,
And after kissed a stone,

And after that arranged it in a song Seeing that I, ignorant for so long, Had been rewarded thus In Cormac's ruined house.

“Unpack the loaded pern,” p. 36.

WHEN I was a child at Sligo I could see above my grandfather's trees a little column of smoke from “the pern mill,” and was told that “pern” was another name for the spool, as I was accustomed to call it, on which thread was wound. One could not see the chimney for the trees, and the smoke looked as if it came from the mountain, and one day a foreign sea-captain asked me if that was a burning mountain.
